

GSA 18f OpenFDA Prototype User Feedback

Clifton Washington

Fri 6/26/2015 1:53 PM

Inbox

To: Anjan Chimaladinne <achimaladinne@ttsiglobal.com>;

Cc: Srinivas Malladi <smalladi@ttsiglobal.com>; Vikram Naik <vikram@ttsiglobal.com>; Nelson Pimentel <npimentel@ttsiglobal.com>;

Anjan,

Here is my feedback on the subject prototype site:

Navigability and Usability –

- Home screen easy to read and provides sufficient information on the purpose of the prototype
- Easy to navigate to find information once you leave the home page
- Unless I missed it, there was no button/tab to return to the home page once you leave the home page

Content and Usefulness –

- The information conveyed seems relevant and useful for anyone requiring data on Drug, Devices, and Food Recalls
- When I clicked on Ohio for recall data and then changed to Texas to look for answers to one of the questions, the graph changed, however the table below still referred to Ohio and not Texas. I had to go back to the home page and re-enter the site to get the Texas table

Design Responsiveness and Accuracy –

- Site is hard to use on my iPhone (State abbreviations on the map are too large and hard to read; Top and Bottom 10 states graphic does not display)
- Site looks good and is usable on my iPad; data was accurately displayed

Answers for the questions:

- Which State had the lowest number of food recalls? Alaska (easy to find the answer)
- Which year had the most number of Device recalls for California? 2014 (easy to find the answer)
- Which month of 2014 had the most number of Drug recalls for Virginia? December (easy to find the answer)
- Tell me one of the Food recall Numbers for May 2015, Recalling Firm: Texas Pecan Co.? F-2306-2015 (had to navigate back to home page and then back to map to get to the Texas table for the information)

Hope this helps...

Kind Regards,

Cliff Washington, Colonel, U.S. Marine Corps (Ret.)

Trillion Technology Solutions, Inc.

cwashington@ttsiglobal.com

202-255-5031